

Small Groups Sessions

Each week we'll take what we heard on Sunday and consider what that means for our lives through reading scripture, questions and prayer.

A helpful framework for good discussion that we've been using in some of our leadership development training involves 3 key questions:

1. What is?

This question helps us to consider two main things:

a) What does the Bible say?

The Bible is God's true and authoritative word, and so we should begin by looking at what the Bible says is true about us for each topic.

b) What is the reality in our lives right now?

As we read God's word, we begin to realise that our experience doesn't tend to match up with it. It's important to consider what those things are that stop us in walking in the fullness of our identity in Christ.

2. What could be?

Using our holy imagination, what impact would we see in our lives, homes, church and communities if we were to grow in the area in question?

If this way of life became truly embedded into us, what would we see in one month, one year or even in one lifetime?

3. What will be?

We are told not to be hearers of the word only, but doers. (James 1:22)

Each week we want to implement God's way into the coming week, and to do this we give time to consider two questions:

a) What is God saying?

The Sunday sermon and the small group discussion so far will have brought up many things.

The key here is to try and boil it down to one key, memorable thing that God is saying to us. This could be an unshakeable thought, realisation of a sin, wrong-thinking or a specific action you sense God is calling you to.

b) What am I going to do about it?

This is where we get practical: if God is speaking to me about this, what can I do in the next week about it?

Encourage one another to make this as specific and actionable as possible, and to avoid vague or fluffy answers. Build an expectation that we are going to walk in truth each week.

The Kairos Circle - A Tool for Transformation

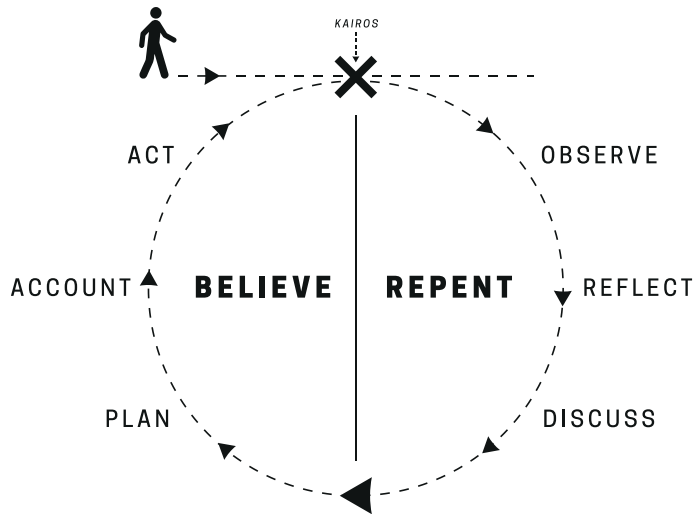

These questions are based off a helpful tool that underpins our understanding of godly transformation from Mike Breen's book "Building a Discipling Culture" - something he calls a kairos moment.*

A kairos moment is a point or experience in life, either positive or negative, in which the Lord is speaking to us. At that moment we have two options: we can choose to ignore Him and carry on, or stop and allow the Holy Spirit to take us on a journey of transformation and belief.

In order to experience this transformation, we need to do what Jesus explains as "repent and believe". (Mark 1:15)

In the kairos circle, repent and believe are divided into three parts. A disciple who is being transformed walks around the circle, repenting first and then believing.

*Mike Breen says "A kairos moment is when the eternal God breaks into your circumstances with an event that gathers some loose ends of your life and knots them together in his hands."

Step 1: Repent

Observe

In order to change you need to observe where you are. During a kairos moment, observe your reactions, emotions and thoughts.

Reflect

Why did you react the way you did? Why do you feel the way you do? Why did that emotion get brought to the surface?

Discuss

Inviting others into the process is a vital part of transformation, and Small Groups are an excellent place for this. A place where people can share and confess openly and honestly with trustworthy friends who will pray and stand with them is vital.

Step 2: Believe

Plan

Get practical. Make a plan for how you are going to lead inner change in your life.

Account

It's important to have at least one person holding us accountable to our plan. This process externalises the plan instead of letting it remain internal.

Act

Once a plan is established and shared with someone else, the natural reaction is for action to take place.

8. The Bold Disciple

2 Corinthians 3:4-12

Such is the confidence that we have through Christ towards God. Not that we are sufficient in ourselves to claim anything as coming from us, but our sufficiency is from God, who has made us competent to be ministers of a new covenant, not of the letter but of the Spirit. For the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life. Now if the ministry of death, carved in letters on stone, came with such glory that the Israelites could not gaze at Moses' face because of its glory, which was being brought to an end, will not the ministry of the Spirit have even more glory? For if there was glory in the ministry of condemnation, the ministry of righteousness must far exceed it in glory. Indeed, in this case, what once had glory has come to have no glory at all, because of the glory that surpasses it. For if what was being brought to an end came with glory, much more will what is permanent have glory. Since we have such a hope, we are very bold

Overview

Many of us can feel that the God we represent in all His impressiveness is hindered by our feeble attempts at sharing and showing Him to the World around us. We often struggle to stand up and stand out for Christ in our friendships, workplaces, and neighbourhoods. We can be so focused on our lack and weakness that we lose all confidence.

Paul is making the point that the disciple of Jesus finds their boldness not in their own ability but in the sufficiency of God and His Spirit. Paul's defence of his apostolic ministry is in the truth that it is God that is competent and confident, it is the Spirit of God that brought out the fruit of his ministry, and it is the eternal hope of the gospel that makes him bold. That is true for all disciples; we can be those that operate from a place of courage because we trust God.

Our sufficiency comes from Him, our competence comes from Him and our confidence comes from Him. Not only that but our fruitfulness comes from Him.
